Explanation:

Sure! Here's a straightforward explanation of the use case diagram in sentences:

The Admin can add, update, and delete product categories. They can also view all existing categories.

The Sales Manager can add new items to the inventory, update or delete existing items, and view all items in the inventory.

The Sales Associate can create orders for customers, update those orders, and view all customer orders.

The Customer can view their own orders, add items to their shopping cart, and proceed to checkout to complete their purchase.

Each user has specific permissions based on their role in the Retail_sales system.
